

To whom it may concern:

I am writing to express my strong interest and qualifications for a Web Design and Development job.

I have experience from past classes designing, coding, and understanding websites. I understand the importance of providing exceptional content to expectant companies. I hold my work to a high standard.

Some design skills I have developed are mastering Adobe Photoshop, InDesign, Illustrator, Lightroom, and Acrobat. I have been in the top of all my design classes and definitely consider it as one of my God given talents. I really love it.

I am proficient in HTML, CSS, and C++. I am currently furthering my skills in JavaScript, Python, and more. I have a passion for solving the puzzles of programming. I have experience working in Brackets, Visual Studio, and Moba X-Term. I also have learned SEO techniques including Google Adwords, Klout, and Google Analytics.

Past work experiences have taught me how to communicate and overcome challenges with clients. I have the ability to work within a team as well as on my own.

I would be a good option for this job because of my friendly personality, hard work ethics, and passion for this career field.

I look forward to hearing from you, and thank you for your consideration.
